OLDER MEN WILL ROLL UP THEIR SLEEVES AND GET IN

Young Men's Commercial Club's Formal Request of the Rushville Improvement Association.

NEW FIRE PUT INTO FRAY NOW

It's a United Pull From Now on—Young, Old, and Middle Aged Wanted.

The movement for a greater Rushville took on new life today when the Rushville Improvement Association was formally asked to take a hand in the fight. As a result the older men will now roll up their sleeves and get into the fight for the finish. The Young Men's Commercial club was organized to assist the older men in locating factories for Rushville, but in some way the idea got out that there was a slight antagonism to the older men, and that the young men wished to hit the trail alone. This was farthest from the minds and intentions of the young men who have been wishing for the older men, and could not understand why they have not taken more interest in the deal.

Today the thing was solved when the directors of the Commercial club made a formal request of Dr. Frank H. Green, president of the Rushville Improvement Association to assist in the movement for a greater Rushville.
The young men are sorry that there has been any misunderstanding but are glad that they found out where the difficulty was and could remedy it. They say they are anxious for the older men to get into the fight and they realize that nothing can be done without a united pull on the part of all the citizens. It's Rushville for Rushville and that means that every man, every association, and every club should do its share.

Now that everybody understands each other, things will go off with a rush it is thought. There is no denying the fact that there has not been the united pull there should have been. The young men have felt that there was not the united support that there should have been, but have been at a loss to understand the trouble. Now they have it solved, or at least apparently have it solved.

It is the intention now to get a number of men at work to get rid of the lots which are left. Nothing but the do or die spirit can win out on this now. It's a big proposition and it will take the united efforts of every public spirited man in the city. There is no backing down. Things must go from now and they must go with a rush. The factories are waiting and unless the deal is closed at once there will be no hope of closing the agreements with the factories. The pro-motors now have another proposition which is the most encouraging yet submitted to them. It is for a large factory, the worth of which every citizen knows and when the proper interest is shown and the sale starts off with a rush as it will tomorrow morning there is every indication that the whole deal will be made a big success and done rapidly.
Nothing impossible is being asked of Rushville people. Not as much as is being asked as other cities with less advantage have done. Although it may look hard it will be done with the united effort of the citizens.

Every old man, every young man, and every middle aged man is urged to get into the fray at once and help make this new fire which was put in the fight today count, and get rid of the lots by the end of this week.

In Australia there are ants which build their nests along a north and south line so accurately that a traveler may direct his course by their aid.

TONIGHT.

The directors of the Rushville Improvement Association and the directors of the Young Men's Commercial club will meet tonight at eight o'clock at Y. M. C.
C. headquarters. Each official in these two organizations is urged by all means to be there at that time. Any other citizen who is interested in this movement for greater Rushville is welcome to this conference, as there are no secrets.

GET JURORS FROM FRANKLIN COUNTY

Third Trial of John Wilson Charged With Murder of Wife on at Connersville.

RUSH COUNTY MEN LAST TIME

The trial of John Wilson charged with the murder of his wife began in the Fayette circuit court this morning. At the last trial Wilson was found guilty and ten of the jurors were from Rush county. This time a large venire has been summoned from Franklin county. The case attracted so much attention at the time of the commission of the crime and there was so much bitter feeling against Wilson that a jury could not be obtained in Fayette county after the first trial.

QUAKER LADS WON GAME FROM LOCALS

Rushville High School Football Team Defeated Saturday by Richmond by Score of 15 to 6.

LIBERTY PLAYS HERE FRIDAY

The Rushville high school football team journeyed all the way to Richmond Saturday and met defeat at the hands of the high school eleven of that city. The Quaker lads were stronger and faster than the local athletes and as a result won. Heeb scored the only touchdown for the locals in the second half by gathering up one of his own team's punts. The Richmond team made all of their touchdowns in the first half, Rushville bracing in the second half and holding them. The men were bruised up some, but as a whole are in a good condition for the game with the Liberty high school team which will be played here Friday afternoon.

History.

AND BEAN KING IS RIGHT, TOO

Al Linville, the former bean king of Rushville, one time manager of a skating rink in this city, and an all around good fellow, was in the city Saturday advertising Rushville's horse show, grand floral and auto parade to be held in that city on Oct.
20-21, says the Greensburg News.
Al is a good mixer, a conscientious worker and he thoroughly advertised the fall attraction of our sister city while here. Mr. Linville is authority for the statement that the horse show, parade, etc., will be one of the greatest attractions that the Rush county metropolis ever offered to its citizens and he guarantees all visitors a royal welcome.

MEREDITH TELLS OF NARROW ESCAPE

Rushville Man Says Death Stared
Him in Face During the Awful Storm Last Week.

NO WORD FROM SAM HERKLESS

A letter was received today from Gilbert Meredith, who was in the storm swept district near Key West, last week. The letter tells of the thrilling experiences of some of the men and of the awful damage done by the storm.

Mr. Meredith says he thought they would never escape with their lives.
Several men are known to have been drowned and others are still missing.
He says nothing of Sam Herkless about whom there is much concern.
As far as is known no word has been received from Herkless which only adds to the anxiety about his safety.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF DORA EDWARDS

Wife of Injured Man Sends Word to Marshal Asking For Protection
From Borem.

SAYS SHE FAINTED SUNDAY

When Borem Came in and Blamed
Edwards Because he Lost His Job.

City Marshal Price was asked by the solicitous friends of Dora Edwards today to protect him from John Borem, who cut Edwards up in a street fight over a week ago. Edwards' friends have come to the marshal with the story that young Borem runs into the Edwards home at most any time without even announcing his coming and that Mrs.
Edwards fears him and is afraid that he will do her husband further bodily harm.

Mrs. Edwards sent word to Marshal Price this morning asking for help and said she wanted something done in regard to the matter as she feared that Borem would injure Edwards who is worse as the result of his wounds. She said in her message that Borem rushed into their house yesterday without even knocking at the door. He went over to the bed and, according to Mrs. Edwards, she thought he meant to strike her husband. Mrs. Edwards fell over in a swoon and was not revived for several minutes.

She said that Borem asked Edwards in angry tones why he had caused him to lose his position at the furniture factory, and what he had done to him. Although Borem did not touch Edwards, Mrs. Edwards said that she expected him to strike him at any moment while her husband lay there in bed.

Edwards has requested his physicians to move him to his parents' home so that he may have some protection, but the physicians do not think he should be moved at this stage of his recovery. He is not so well as he was the first few days after the fight, but it is thought that he will recover.

umbus Republican. J. Walter Wilson music at the Tabernacle, will direct this chorus and Arthur W. Mason complete musical program for the State conference will be ready within the next few days.

LOCAL HOLIDAY AT PITTSBURG

Smoky City Wild Over Victory of "Pirates."

A BIG OVATION FOR ADAMS

By General Consent Pittsburghers Took Today Off in Order to Celebrate the Victory of Their Ball Team Over the Detroit "Tigers"—Tonight a Great Parade Will Escort the Victors to Forbes Field, Where the Prize Money Will Be Distributed.

Pittsburg, Oct. 18.—This is celebration day here. The victory of the Pirates over the Tigers is by general consent to culminate in a grand street parade tonight. Mayor Magee sanctioned the celebration by issuing a proclamation calling on the athletic clubs and civic organizations to get in line down town and march to Forbes Field. The right of the line will be taken up by the victorious Pittsburgh players in uniform.

Colonel Albert J. Logan of the Eighteenth regiment, N. G. P., has been appointed chief marshal, and he has appointed a large staff of aides. At Forbes Field a stand has been erected in the center of the field, and on it the players will be presented with their checks by Barney Dreyfus. Mayor Magee has invited Presidents Johnson, Heydler, Hermann and other leading magnates to be the city's guests. "Babe" Adams, who pitched three games successfully for the Pirates, has sprung into fame like a flash. The "Adams" cocktail was invented in his honor by a saloon keeper Saturday, and the drink got in its insidious work as Adams did on the Detroit batters. About twenty-seven men were lined up before Magistrate Matthews Sunday morning. Each drunk of the night before pleaded that he had been introduced to a new drink named the "Adams" cocktail, and it had floored him. Judge Matthews, being somewhat of a fan, considered the excuse a legal one and discharged the prisoners without even a reprimand.

On the train from Detroit carrying the Pittsburgh rooters and the Pirate crew Saturday night to Pittsburg, a fund was started for Pitcher Adams. By the time the train reached Pittsburg $600 had been subscribed. The news was telegraphed to Pittsburg, and by midnight the contribution had been increased to $800. It is expected that $1,000 will be subscribed today and will be presented to "Babe" at Forbes Field after the parade. On "Babe's" arrival here Sunday morning twenty-five messenger boys, each with a bundle of telegrams, met him at the station. He had to get nearly all of his fellow players to help him sign for the messages of congratulation which came from all parts of the country.

Saturday was the fifteenth anniversary of Barney Dreyfus's wedding, and his wife reminded him of it early by telegraphing him that she hoped his team would be victorious on their wedding anniversary. After the game Barney flashed the message and said: "I knew we could not lose on my wedding anniversary."

DON'T LIKE EARLY RISING

Why the Postoffice in an Indiana Village Is Going Begging.

Columbus, Ind., Oct. 18.—The postmaster at Taylorsville, a small town six miles north of here, is going begging. Gaston Fulp, the present postmaster, has tendered his resignation and an examination for applicants for the place was to have been held here, but there were no applicants forthcoming and Mr. Fulp is still holding over. He resigned because he has to get up at 3 o'clock every morning to prepare the mail for an early train.

Seeking the American Viewpoint.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 18.—Saburo N. Satch, journalist, sociologist and author, is the latest arrival among the colony of foreign students enrolled in Indiana university for the current term. Hailing from Shinkawa, Japan, Satch came to this country after graduating from one of the leading Japanese universities.

Indiana Red Men to Meet.

Indianapolis, Oct. 18.—The annual meeting of the great council of the Improved Order of Red Men of Indiana will be held at the assembly room of the German House tomorrow and Wednesday. Given Verdict For Injuries.

Not a Good Hiding Place.

Goshen, Ind., Oct. 18.—George W. Method, a farmer, was arrested for stealing silverware from Fisher Brothers' store in New Paris. He was detected when his plunder of knives and forks fell from an umbrella in which he had concealed it.

REMARKABLE SERVICE

Partakers of Lord's Supper Fill Great Athletic Field.

Pittsburg, Oct. 18.—In striking contrast with the behavior of the frenzied baseball enthusiasts, more than 30,000 strong, that filled every available inch of space on Forbes Field at the championship games last week, a devout throng almost equal in size, participated Sunday afternoon in what is believed to have been the greatest celebration of the Lord's supper ever held anywhere. Although conducted by the Disciples of Christ, whose nine days' celebration of their centennial and convention was brought to a close today, hundreds of members of other denominations joined in the communion service. However large the crowd was not so great as had been expected. There are over 40,000 delegates in Pittsburg now from all parts of the world.

In spirit at least, the hope of the Christian church to unify the religious world was realized. Rich and poor, men of influence and power, and those in the humbler walks of life, were brought close together in the bonds of Christian fellowship. "Blest be the tie that binds," sung in unison by 26,000 persons of all religious denominations and of nearly all the nations in the world, rising in one great swelling anthem, brought to a close the celebration.

WM. I. BUCHANAN DIES SUDDENLY

Diplomat Seized With Heart Disease In London.

London, Oct. 18.—Ex-Judge William I. Buchanan, formerly American minister to Panama and later special envoy to Venezuela, died in this city Saturday night. Near midnight a policeman who was patrolling Park Lane found a man in evening dress clinging to the railings outside of No. 10. He was unable to speak and was very ill. The policeman took him to St. George's hospital, where he died before the doctors could aid him. Death was caused by heart disease. The body was taken to a mortuary, where it was identified Sunday morning by the manager of Claridge's hotel, where Mr. Buchanan frequently stayed. He arrived there last Thursday from the continent. He went out to dine Saturday evening apparently well. There is no suspicion whatever of violence. The American embassy is making arrangements for his funeral.

WILLIAM I. BUCHANAN.

SHOOK THEM UP

New York Central Heads in a Wreck on Their Own Road.

New York, Oct. 18.—William W. Vanderbilt, sr., principal owner of the New York Central; W. C. Brown, president of the road, and William H. Newman, the former president, now a director, were pretty well shaken up in their private cars Sunday when the New York express, No. 28, was derailed by a broken rail near Rhinecliff station. One man was killed and ten people were hurt when the express was flung off the track.

Sidetracked Delicate Problem.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18.—A report recommending a committee to confer with the state auditor regarding a more thorough examination of Illinois associations was withdrawn at the annual meeting of the Building Association League of Illinois when some delegates feared the recommendation might be construed as an attack upon the state office.

Killed on the Harriman Estate.

New York, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Bruce Price, widow of a former well-known architect and a member of the Tuxedo colony, was killed and Mrs. Charles J. Coulter, also of Tuxedo, was injured when their automobile collided with a tree on the public road from Arden to Tuxedo on the Harriman estate, Sunday afternoon.

Celebrating Cornwallis's Surrender.

Yorktown, Va., Oct. 18.—The celebration of the 128th anniversary of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis to General Washington has attracted much attention. The old town is decorated and much enthusiasm is being manifested.

HELPED BY POLICE

Happy Solution to Riot Problem in Streets of Paris.

Paris, Oct. 18.—The first attempt at a Ferrer demonstration here conducted as in London, with the police as assistants rather than as an enemy, took place Sunday and was a distinct success. Forty thousand manifestants participated. They stopped in their parade when the officers commanding the soldiers dividing each group intimated that a halt was necessary and they signalled the crowd behind to stop.

The procession, which included many women and children, relieved its feelings by singing the "International."

No Serious Consequences.

London, Oct. 18.—The first public Ferrer demonstration in England filled Trafalgar Square Sunday afternoon with a crowd numbering many thousands. A large proportion were on-lookers, but the genuine manifestation made a big muster. They included many Germans, Frenchmen, Italians and Spaniards. The speeches were very violent, and afterward there was an exciting row, which, however, did not have any very serious consequences.

ESKIMOS BELIEVE IN COOK'S EXPLOIT

Word From Rasmussen Comes Out of the North.

Copenhagen, Oct. 18.—The Godthaab, the Greenland administration's steamer on which Dr. Cook traveled from Upernivik to Egesminde, where he boarded the steamer Hans Egede, has returned here. Her captain says that Knud Rasmussen, who went to interview the two Eskimos who Dr. Cook claims accompanied him to the pole, did not see them. He did not succeed in reaching Anaktok because the season was too advanced. However, he met at North Star bay, north of Cape York, Eskimos who had talked with Dr. Cook's Eskimos and their statements agreed with Dr. Cook's. They believe that Cook reached the pole. Captain Schonbye adds that when the Eskimos at North Star bay saw his ship they were terrified, thinking that Peary was on board. They hurriedly hid their provisions and other property. They fear Peary like the devil. Rasmussen will return soon on board the Hans Egede, but it is improbable that he has further information.

HURRIED HIM UP

Dr. Cook Will Expedite Transmission of Records.

New York, Oct. 18.—Dr. Cook announces that he will cancel as many of his lectures as possible because of the events of the last few days and at once prepare his records for the University of Copenhagen. He has also made the positive announcement that his records will go first to Copenhagen and that not until after they had first seen them would other scientific bodies see his records.

BLACKBURN HOME

He Says, However, That His Resignation Has Not Been Handed In.

New York, Oct. 18.—Gov. Joseph C. S. Blackburn, of the canal zone, who has arrived from Cristobal, said that notwithstanding rumors of his retirement his resignation had not been handed in at Washington. He intimated that it would not be. He is here on fifty-six days' leave of absence, a part of which he will spend in Washington and a part at his home in Kentucky.

Governor Blackburn made some unfavorable comments on the bill before congress providing for the government of the canal zone by a commission of three, instead of by the present method. One of the three is designated in the bill as a "director," and Governor Blackburn said he could understand the need of a governor and chief engineer, but that he had been unable to comprehend exactly what the director was going to do. He did not believe the bill in the shape it is in now would pass the house. After the removal of some of its crudities it might be made acceptable.

Magoon May Take Crane's Place.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The arrival here of William E. Magoon, former provisional governor of Cuba and at that time President Taft's first lieutenant in the island, has given rise to the rumor that he had been summoned in connection with the new vacancy in the diplomatic post in Peking, from which Charles R. Crane was removed before he had had time to proceed to the Chinese capital.

Reserved Last Shot For Himself.

San Bernardino, Cal., Oct. 18.—Willie Boy, the Plute desperado for whom three armed posses had been searching the San Bernardino desert, was found dead on the summit of Bullion mountain, where he had been making his last stand. He had killed himself with the last shot in his rifle and had been dead for several days.

GAYNOR LONG IN PUBLIC EYE.

Career of Noted Jurist, Democratic Nominee For Mayor of New York.

Judge William J. Gaynor, who has been nominated by the Democrats for mayor of New York, has been before the public for many years, and by politicians generally is regarded as a radical. His last appearance in the limelight was when he championed the cause of George Duffy of Brooklyn, whose picture was in the rogues' gallery and who declared that although he had never been convicted of a crime the police refused to remove his picture and arrested him without provocation on many occasions.

It was the Duffy case which resulted in the dismissal of General Bingham from the office of police commissioner. Judge Gaynor caused an investigation of the case, and Mayor McClellan held that young Duffy had been improperly treated by the police.

Judge Gaynor previously attracted public attention, when, in 1906, he held that it was illegal for the Brooklyn

JUDGE WILLIAM J. GAYNOR.

Rapid Transit company to charge more than one fare to Coney Island. This decision was rendered in the case of a Dr. McFarlane, who had refused to pay the two fares regularly collected by the railroad company. Many thousands of New York residents remember the riots which followed the issuance of this decision. The Sunday crowds bound for Coney Island declined to pay the two fares, and the entire police force was required to prevent incipient rebellion. Hundreds of persons were injured. A few days later Judge Gaynor advised all travelers to pay the two fares until the higher courts could pass upon the decision. This stopped confusion. The upper courts held that it was legal for the company to charge a double fare.

Judge Gaynor first attracted public attention when he took part in the investigation of the election frauds at Gravesend in 1893. As a result of this investigation several men were sent to prison, and one of the most corrupt "election gangs" New York city ever knew was broken up. This made Judge Gaynor a conspicuous figure, and a short time later he was nominated by the Republicans and Independent Democrats for a place on the supreme court bench. He was elected for fourteen years in 1893 and was re-elected in 1907 and assigned for service in the appellate division.

He was born in Whitestown, New York state, fifty-eight years ago and went to Brooklyn in 1873 to do newspaper work. He had received an education in the Whitestown seminary and a school in Boston. While doing newspaper work he studied law and was admitted to the bar in the early seventies.

Judge Gaynor is one of the executors of the estate of William Ziegler, former head of the baking powder trust, who left between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000. From this Judge Gaynor derives a substantial income.

What We Owe to the Brave Navigator Who Discovered America. The States Which Will Observe His Day This Year

Reasons For Establishing a Holiday to Celebrate the Exploit of One Who Aimed at a Little Goal and Reached a Big One looking for the Indies and found many Indies rolled into one. He sought the seat of a past civilization and discovered the seat of the civilization of the future. He was hunting rabbits and bagged an elephant.

Columbus is not the only discoverer whose title has been questioned. The historical iconoclast is out with his hammer, and the voice of the knocker is heard in our land. They even say that Bacon wrote Shakespeare and that Thomas Paine was the author of the Declaration of Independence. As for men who have invented and discovered things, they seem to travel in pairs—sort of scientific twins, as it were. There have been Cooks and Pearrys all through history. It is claimed that Hudson was not the first to find the Hudson river; that Fulton had a predecessor in the invention of the steamboat; that another man had a working telegraph before Morse got to it; that Elisha Gray and not Professor Bell was the real inventor of the telephone. And so it goes. But even if Columbus was not the first to find America the land stayed discovered after he did find it. That is the great point. The man that does the thing and makes it stick is the one that gets the bay leaves. It pays to advertise. Columbus was not only there in the line of discovery, but also in that of publicity. He let all Europe know about it. He made discovering America fashionable. As soon as the other navigators heard of his find they ran for it like a bunch of miners to a new strike. Every man who could get together two or three ships was soon plowing the waves to the west. All of them were hunting for gold or fountains of youth or a new kind of El Dorado, but found something better. They started man to a new home, where he could spread himself and be somebody. They sought a few yellow stones and gave the world the temple of democracy and a new age. This epoch should be called the Columbian, for he was its founder. He is entitled not only to have a day named for him, but many centuries. Measured by results, he is the king of discoverers.

From Italy to America, from the Rome of the first century to the Rome of the twentieth, this is the road Columbus found. He led the way from the land of Scipio and Caesar to that of Washington and Lincoln.

The Dawn of a New Era.

When Columbus discovered America and the renaissance was making a new sunrise over Europe. Martin Luther was a little lad learning the German alphabet. It was the end of the century in which John Huss had started the reformation. Joan of Arc had begun the nationalization of France, and printing had been invented. America chose the best possible time to get herself put on the map and also selected the best possible man to do it. At any rate, that is a more comfortable view than the one held by the iconoclasts and pessimists.

By all means let us have Columbus day. Looked at from every standpoint, he is worthy the honor. Besides, with the finding of the north pole the age of discovery is about over and we should hold the chief event of it in perpetual remembrance.

The king of Spain repudiated Columbus, and now the new world has repudiated Spain. She has not a shred of land left in the western hemisphere, where once she had practically all of one continent and nearly half of the other. This territory Columbus gave to her in return for chains. Fate has evened the measure, after a habit of hers. Spain is stripped bare and Columbus is honored among the benefactors of mankind.

The Knights of Columbus.

The history of the establishment of Columbus day is briefly as follows: For many years the Knights of Columbus and the Italian societies have celebrated what was at first called discovery day on the 12th of October. In the city of New York a yearly meeting has been held in Carnegie hall in celebration of the event, addressed by some speaker of national prominence. This year Governor Hughes will be the speaker. The governor's connection with the day has been somewhat peculiar. The first bill passed by the New York legislature making Oct. 12 a legal holiday he vetoed, alleging certain defects. Such a protest went up that he promised to sign a bill correcting these defects if passed by the next legislature, a promise that he kept in affixing his signature to the law enacted this year.

In addition to the Carnegie hall meeting, a great banquet will be held in the Hotel Astor on the night of Oct. 11 at which there will be 1,000 invited guests. Elaborate ceremonies will also be held in Connecticut, where the Knights of Columbus have their national headquarters; in New Jersey and elsewhere throughout the country. Dr. J. G. Coyle of New York, who is said to know more about Columbus day than any other New Yorker, assured me that he believed this holiday would grow in popularity more rapidly than did Labor day. In addition to the states that have already adopted it, he stated that a half dozen more are on the eve of doing so, among which he mentioned Ohio, North and South Dakota and Louisiana. The first official recognition of the day, according to Dr. Coyle, came from Colorado when Governor Alva Adams called for its observance in a proclamation. This was followed three years ago by Mayor Dunne of Chicago. Now the observance of the holiday is swiftly spreading throughout the land.

There are nearly 348,000 persons enrolled in the Sunday schools of Massachusetts, including some 35,000 officers and teachers.

TAKING OF THE NATIONAL CENSUS

Two and a Quarter Billion Questions to Be Asked.

EXPERTS WILL FRAME THEM.

Each Query Costs Tens of Thousands of Dollars—Answers to Be Compiled by Electricity at the Rate of 3,500 or 4,000 an Hour.

The national census of the United States partakes of the nature of both an inventory of material possessions and a social, industrial, educational and moral stock taking. The constitution requires a census every ten years as the basis for the reapportionment of representatives in congress. Fewer even than six questions, the number asked in the first census of 1790, would now meet the basic need from which the census sprang. But progress in general and national expansion in particular have demanded more information.

It may be asked, "What questions shall be included in the schedules of the census bureau where each costs tens of thousands of dollars?" Upon this point there is a difference of opinion, and since bureaus, like individuals, are fallible the census reports have been criticised, often severely, by men well qualified to judge. Profiting by the past, the officials of the thirteenth decennial census have said to a body of experts, "Put your heads together and help us to compose schedules covering population, agriculture, manufactures and mines and mining which shall best fill the demands of business, science, progress and human welfare."

So the classes of men which have supplied competent critics in the past have now furnished builders who are about to complete their labors in Washington. They came as salaried, expert special agents to give the country the benefit of study and experience to make the census of 1910, it is hoped, the most valuable ever taken anywhere in the world. There are among these men professors, occupying many different chairs, and industrial, farm, stock, mining and other experts. The schedule of manufactures has been presented for criticism to commercial bodies, and the tentative agricultural schedule has been examined by experts of the department of agriculture, by state commissioners of agriculture and others.

Many Enumerators to Be Employed.

Census Director E. Dana Durand is the administrative head of the bureau, which is under the jurisdiction of Charles Nagel, secretary of the department of commerce and labor. Assistant Director W. P. Willoughby, with Dr. J. A. Hill, will have immediate charge of the technical work of the bureau. The population returns as of the date April 15, 1910, will be obtained by 65,000 enumerators under the oversight of 330 supervisors. The agricultural schedule also will be carried by 45,000 of the enumerators and will cover the farm operations of 1909 and the farm equipment on April 15, 1910.

The great importance of this schedule will be realized from the fact that about three times as much capital is invested in agriculture as in manufactures. Six million farms will be visited, and it is expected that it will develop that fully 15,000,000 people are engaged in agricultural pursuits. About 2,000 special agents will begin the collection of statistics of manufactures for the year 1909 on Jan. 1. Three hundred of the regular enumerators will carry schedules of manufactures in certain districts.

New Compiling Device.

About 3,000 clerks in addition to the permanent force of the census bureau will be employed in Washington to compile the statistics from the schedules. Uncle Sam's up to dateness in a mechanical way in the present case is attested by the new equipment which is to be installed to facilitate the labor of compilation. The use of machinery has made it possible to enlarge the scope of investigation included in the schedule, because it is now possible to deal with a mass of data which could not have been handled by the old method of making tables. In 1900 the schedule of population alone contained twenty-five questions. Take the population of 310 at 90,000,000, with the same number of questions, and this will mean no less than 2,250,000,000 items to be counted, to say nothing of combinations.

The present system of tabulating returns was first used in the census of 1890. The vital factor is a simple thing, a card about 3 by 6 1/2 inches, with holes punched in it. A position or combination of positions is assigned to "white," "colored," etc., so that every possible answer is provided for.

The schedules are all transferred to cards with the help of a punching machine. This has a keyboard much like a typewriter. The cards are fed under the punches from a pack and ejected automatically. These machines, of which 300 have been ordered, can be operated at the rate of from 400 to 500 cards an hour with an average of thirteen or fourteen strokes to the card.

How Tabulating Machines Work.

There will be a hundred tabulating machines. They somewhat resemble an upright piano in appearance. In place of the keyboard there is a feed plate and an arm carrying a pin box near one end. As a card may have between 200 and 300 positions and as a tabulating machine has only sixty counters, it is necessary to run a card through several times in order to get all the information.

After deciding what data are wanted the little cups in the feed plate affected are filled with mercury, and electric connections are made with the counters. Then when a card is fed the pin box descends and wherever holes have been punched for the answers required the pins dip into the mercury and an electric current causes the counters to register. The card itself is sufficiently rigid to prevent all the other pins from dipping into the mercury. It will be seen, then, that the principle governing the operation of the tabulating machine is simple. This mechanism can be fed by hand at the rate of 3,500 or 4,000 an hour.

In tabulating the population schedule alone 90,000,000 cards will be passed six times through the machines. When an enumeration district is completed or when desired the totals shown by all the counters are printed on paper tapes at a single operation, and these are drawn out and the numbers transcribed. The agricultural schedule will have a machine adapted to its special needs, which will register and add the value of farms, stock, crops, etc.

Many typewriters, adding machines, combined writers and adders and machines for computing percentages and performing other arithmetical operations will be used. Heretofore much leased tabulating machinery has been used at large expense. For this census very little will be required, and it is estimated that this change of policy will save many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

WRIGHT'S NONCHALANCE.

Balloons traversing the empyrean are no new sight to New Yorkers or to many other people. But the biggest part of New York until recently had never seen the thing itself—a captain of a real aeroplane lift himself into the air high enough for millions to see and applaud him. One of the most alluring parts of the Hudson-Fulton celebration advertisements was the promise that the city and its visitors should have that long desired opportunity during the celebration.

And they had it. Wilbur Wright, the famous aviator, rose into the air, circled Governors island and settled down on the little piece of ground he had left only a few minutes before.

That was an impressive accomplishment for New York spectators, but only Governors island saw that. Staten Island and New Jersey, Brooklyn, Manhattan—these all had watchers out on the water fronts looking for the air craft. For them Wilbur Wright was to show himself and his silvered machine.

Presently their turn came. Just as if it were nothing out of the ordinary, Mr. Wright started the engine of his aeroplane, the propeller blades whirled around, the aviator buttoned his coat, pulled down his cap and stepped into his seat, and off he flew over New York bay toward Jersey, circled around the statue of Liberty at a height of 150 feet or so, bowed low, as it were, and passed on, sailing across the bow of another wonderful craft—of a type whose wonders, they say, will soon be wonders no more—the Lusitania, outward bound.

Then back to Governors island, back to the little spot from which he had risen, whereupon Mr. Wright got out just as calmly as he had got in, put his hands in his pockets and looked just a trifle pleased. The spectators took a long breath and yelled, not with nice dignity, perhaps, but with exultant excitement. Downtown New York had seen its first real aeroplane flight.

Mr. Wright was in the air three times. First he made a complete circuit of Governors island. A few minutes later he flew to the statue of Liberty and around it, each time wheeling around the filled in land near his shed on the west shore of Governors island and settling on the sand in true bird fashion. After that, late in the afternoon, he made one long and one short circuit of the Governors island new made land, starting off in the teeth of a fifteen mile wind, which at times attained a velocity of nearly twenty miles.

worth mentioning. The more we think of it the more we grow appalled at the size of the debt we owe this man Columbus, and any one mean enough to begrudge one day a year in his honor ought to be lost and never discovered at all.

Why Columbus Deserves Honor.

Of course Columbus did not know that he had bumped into America, but he was the cause of us knowing it, which is more to the point. The fact that he died in ignorance of just how big a thing he had delivered to posterity should cause us to try all the harder to make it up to him. He could not foresee Tammany Hall, Dr. Cook, President Taft and the star spangled banner. Think of what he missed! He had a rather tough time of it when alive, had Columbus, and, as is the case with most of the helpers of the race, the best the world can do for him is to name towns, babies and holidays for him and write books about him after he is dead. That is a thin sort of compensation, but is the most substantial we can give. Poor old Columbus was called crazy in his day by men who had so much second-hand learning they had no brain space for original thought. He had committed the unpardonable sin of being born poor, and that peeved a lot of people who were spending the money that others earned. Columbus had to go around nearly twenty years before he could find anybody big enough to see the bigness of his dream. It was a woman that finally gave him the chance to make good. She sold her jewels to help him and with them bought the love and gratitude of all after times.

When Columbus first got acquainted with the West Indies on that Oct. 12 417 years ago it was a lucky meeting—lucky for him because it broke up a mutiny of his crew and lucky for us because of reasons—well, why try to recount all of them? That is the day we celebrate or are going to celebrate as soon as all the state legislatures can get around to the matter of fixing up a holiday for the purpose. New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Colorado, Illinois, Missouri, Montana, California and Michigan have already taken the joyous step, and others will follow as soon as they get their patriotism screwed up to the is the way with those who do the supreme things of the world. They are moved by they know not what forces to they know not what destiny. But they are moved mightily, and according to their obedience to the inner impulse is their outer fame. The moving finger writes unerringly the innermost secrets of each soul. The invisible of what we are in our most hidden reality becomes seen of all men in our deeds. The great souls are beheld as great souls when they do the world's work in obedience to a moving that is not of the world.

Columbus was a most religious man—in the religion of the spirit and not of the form—as are all those to whom are intrusted the high things. Why not give him a day? He gave us a land. Why not bestow his name on one three-hundred-and-sixty-fifth of each year when we failed to do him the justice of naming for him the continents which he found? Why not suspend our business in his honor one brief twelve hours when he gave us practically his whole life? This is but a poor requital and a belated one. We owe him more, but if we cannot cancel the whole obligation we can at least pay something. We can give 5 cents on the dollar on the debt of gratitude—a branch of commerce in which there are more bankrupts than any other.

Where the Italians Come In.

It is peculiarly fitting that the Italian societies should propose this day. Columbus was their countryman. He is the historical link that binds them to America. He is theirs and ours. He is theirs by birth and ours by heritage. They gave him to the world, and he gave one-half the world to us. Our debt is to him and also to them for him. He was the first Italian-American and the first European-American of any stock—not technically so perhaps, but actually. Of all those we honor he stands first—first in time and first in the sense that without him there could have been none other. Had he not discovered America some other might have done so perhaps, but he did discover it, and so the suppositious possibility detracts nothing from his credit. Nor does the fact that the discovery was unintentional diminish him. Many inventions and discoveries are the result of accident. He was

Public spirited citizens are working now for the good of Rushville. Sarcastic remarks are often heard about the men who work for the "good of the country" and anybody can make cute remarks about the men who really accomplish things. Rushville is to be congratulated on the fact that there has been little or none of this in this present movement for a greater Rushville. The men who have been working to make this movement a success have been doing so knowing that they would not get a cent directly in return although they realize full well that they will profit as every other Rushville man will by the growth of the city. These men have been working early in the morning and late at night, and they are all hustling business men who have their regular positions and some of them work overtime anyway.

Now they are asking for volunteers for one week's work to help sell the remainder of the lots. In other cities where similar movements have been made successes, the citizens and business men have rallied to the call for they are the most loyal men on earth when once aroused.

At Brazil where about 1000 lots were sold, there were twenty men in flying squadrons at work all the time. And they had promoters there who managed the deal. It's enthusiasm that counts, and numbers make enthusiasm. To make this thing a decided success it will take workers and they must come at once.

Think this over, and then go to headquarters and tell the men you are willing to work every minute you can spare this week.

SOCIETY NEWS

Mrs. William C. George was pleasantly surprised at her home in East Tenth street on her fifty-fifth birthday last Friday. She received several nice presents from her many friends who came to spend the evening with her. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pearsey, Mrs. Minnie Morris and children, Mrs. William Manning and children, Mrs. Walter West and daughter Addie, Frank Finley, Mrs. Rose Berry, Miss Elizabeth Downey, and Miss Florence and Lucile Flint.

Girl's Book Club of the Main Street Christian church will hold a Hallowe'en social in the basement of the church on next Friday evening. All are invited.

Miss Henrietta Coleman entertained a number of friends at her home in West Fifth street yesterday with a dinner party. Among the guests were: Mrs. Mary Lewis Hovey of Indianapolis, Ed. Doll of Connersville, Misses Frances Sexton and Ethel Amos and Will C. McColgin and Dr. Lowell M. Green of this city.

Nine days' sickness per annum is the average for the human being.

Just a Few Lot Shots

Don't say you're going to. Don't say anything. Just take the pen and sign the blank. No excuse for waiting.

This week or bust. Have you done your part? Then step in and do something for somebody else. One week with a little sacrifice for a good cause won't shorten your life any. And think how good you will feel after it is all over.

There seems to have been just a little misunderstanding on the part of some of the older men of the city. They think because this is a Young Men's Commercial Club, they are not wanted. This is positively not true, and never has been true. This was meant for a united pull, and it must be a united pull. If you have a good word to say for Rushville you are wanted on the band wagon. If you haven't a good word you'll be dragged on the band wagon to escape being run over.

There is no personal glory stunt in this movement and if there was it would be a failure. Ask the veterans who have always worked for the good of the city if they have ever had any glory for their efforts. No, their work is hardly appreciated, although it is deserving of the highest praise and commendation. Those men are real heroes, for they are coming right back into the fight again and are doing their utmost to make this movement succeed.

Don't you think you can afford to sacrifice a little time and money as well as anybody else? There are a lot of men working until late at night in order to have some time to help out on the lot sale in the day time. Can't you make just a little sacrifice for this one week?

Don't wait until somebody asks you to work. They may think you don't want to. Just come right out and say you are willing to do your share. If you can't give much time, tell the boys you can give a little and will gladly do that.

One man who is not financially able to buy a lot, and whom everybody knows is not financially able to buy a lot, has already sold three to men who are able. What have you done?

If you have any ideas or suggestions, remember the place to take them is to Y. M. C. C. headquarters.

Stop in and tell the men there you will work. Be one of them. If you can't possibly spare any time, stop in for a minute and say your heart is in the right place anyway.

Don't Say "You Boosters"

"Well what have you boosters done?" asked a business man the other day.

Study that question a minute. Notice he said "you boosters." The man to whom the question was addressed has no business interests here, but has been helping the Y. M. C. C. movement and says he will continue to spend every minute of time he can on the deal. And yet the man who has business interests here, the man who would be materially benefited by an increase in population says "you boosters."

There is scarcely a man, woman or child in the city who would not be benefitted directly or indirectly by a greater Rushville, but there is not a single business man who would not be greatly benefitted very directly and very materially. Then as a business proposition—neglecting for the time the public spirit side of the question—how can any business man consistently say "you boosters?" It may have been thoughtlessness; it may have been a misunderstanding. Whatever it was, it was bad business.

No man can consistently say "You Boosters." If he says that he is admitting one of two things—either he is laboring under a misunderstanding or he is not for Rushville. There is no excuse. No need to say you don't understand the deal. You can understand if you go to headquarters and ask questions. That's the place to find out things. They'll tell you just as much as they know. You have the same right to know that they have. And they appreciate that and will tell you. No secrets in this deal as far as you and they are concerned.

But now, think it over. After this don't say "you boosters." Make it "we" for the "you" sounds as though you might live in Connersville or Chicago.

MATLOCK FARES BETTER IN COURT

Given Fifty Dollars Fine This Morning by John Kiplinger as Special Judge.

IS MINIMUM UNDER THE LAW

His, Together With Whitton's Case, Will be Appealed to the Circuit Court.

John H. Kiplinger, acting as special judge in the bootlegging cases in mayor's court last week, this morning returned a decision in the case of the State vs. Dora Matlock, finding the defendant guilty. He fined Matlock fifty dollars which was the minimum under the law. His bond was placed at $150 and he went back to jail.

Attorney Joyce who represented Matlock and also Whitton in the cases will appeal to the circuit court. In the meantime Whitton and Matlock must languish in the county bastille as they cannot furnish bail.

There was no absolute proof that Matlock was guilty except the testimony of Borem, who said on the stand that Matlock sold him and Omer Adams whisky on the fair grounds during the last county fair. Matlock took the stand and denied it, saying that he did not sell whisky on the fair ground. He was arrested shortly after the fair, charged with bootlegging, but no case could be made against him at that time.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE'S WORK

The older members of St. Paul's M. E. church who can seldom get out to church because of their feeble condition had an enjoyable time yesterday morning. The Epworth League had arranged the annual old folks day service and sent vehicles after those who were unable to walk to church.

As the old time hymns were sung the faces of the older people lighted up and it was easy to see that they enjoyed every minute of the service. The Rev. J. W. Turner preached a special sermon to them and special musical numbers were enjoyed.

CHAPTER XI. FRANCES GOES TO SEA.

THREE months had passed following the casting of the Sommers gun, three months that had brought many changes to those whose lives had been for a short time tangled in the intricate maze of pride, love and ambition.

The gun had been taken to the proving grounds and there had stood the test. The naval board was enthusiastic over it. All that remained was for the weapon to prove its efficiency on shipboard at target practice and it would be adopted by the government.

Orders on the Rhinestrom gun were still held up pending the result of target practice. Lieutenant Sommers had been ordered back to sea duty. Apparently he had achieved his ambition. The future looked bright for him in his chosen profession. Fellow officers envied him. He was considered a wonderful young man, and a bright future in the service of his country seemed in store.

All this on the side of ambition, but on the other side life was not so bright. He knew that no matter how high he might rise in his profession happiness could not be his. He had lost irrevocably the girl he loved, and satisfied ambition meant little to him compared to that.

On the morning after the sensational events in the furnace room Sommers had called at the Durant home. Frances had refused to see him. He wrote her a letter, and it was returned to him unopened. Finally he managed to meet her on the street, but she passed him by without speaking.

Next morning the young officer reported back in Washington for duty. And how about the girl? She had hurried away from the works that night burning with shame and raging with anger. She determined never to see Sommers again. She hated him! She knew she did! And to make it sure she told herself so over and over again.

The next day she was still enraged when he called. It cost no effort to have him turned from the door. When his note arrived she started impulsively to open it, then checked herself. She would be firm; she would punish him.

And so with some slight effort she handed the letter to the servant with instructions to return it to Lieutenant Sommers at his hotel.

Passing her old lover on the street had been an effort, but that, too, she managed to do. It took the last of her anger, however. The reaction had come. She began to regret, then to forgive and finally to long once more for the one man who, she felt sure, could make her happy.

A little discreet questioning had brought out the cause of his anger. She found out the real reputation of Pinckney among the work people. The discovery shocked her.

She understood then why Sommers had been so enraged. She saw it was not against her or brought about by any doubt of her, but merely fierce, uncontrollable rage against Pinckney that he had dared—a man of his kind—to put her in a position that his character at once made questionable.

When she had finally come to a real understanding the girl longed to write, but Sommers by that time was away on sea duty, and she could not reach him. Against her own judgment she had longed for and expected some word from him. But the naval officer's pride was too great to pursue a further intrusion after so signal a rebuff.

Then the girl began to grow pale and to worry. Her parents noticed the change without realizing the cause. No one had any suspicion of the real relation between Frances and the young naval officer. That "good night" on the vine covered porch was a secret—a tender memory locked in her heart and in his, to be brought out by each, regarded fondly and mourned over when alone.

Sommers had his work, but Frances had nothing to distract her mind. No wonder she grew paler and seemed to lose interest in everything! Mr. and Mrs. Durant became alarmed. They

WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE

An Offer Backed by One of Our Most Reputable.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly in every way. This ingredient does not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember you can get them in Rushville only at our store. 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents.—The Rexall Store. Lytle's Drug Store.

consulted doctors, but there was nothing wrong physically with their daughter. Finally one big expert proposed a sea voyage, and for the first time Frances showed some sign of interest. Mr. Durant paid a double size bill cheerfully, thinking that doctor a wonderful man.

The Durant yacht, the Irvesa, was got ready as quickly as possible. Mr. Durant could not go himself, so he decided it would be a good plan to send his wife and daughter away for a cruise in charge of Pinckney.

Now for a month they cruised, but Frances showed little sign of interest. Pinckney was the only one who seemed to get real enjoyment out of the trip. He now felt that victory must in the end be his.

He was not deceived by the result of the first test of the Sommers gun. It had stood the first test safely, but in his heart the conspirator knew that soon the badly tempered gun must fall, perhaps with shocking results.

That mattered little to him. The worse the accident the greater the disgrace of Sommers and the surer the result in his favor. The government must then accept the Rhinestrom gun and probably would give a bigger order than ever.

He had no fear of an investigation. That had been well attended to. Smith, under another name, was working far away. There was no one else who knew anything except Marsh, and he could be depended on to keep quiet.

A LAFAYETTE WOMAN HUNG

Marvelous Result of a Woman's Plea.

An old lady called on the Root Juice scientist over at Lafayette, Ind., and said: "I actually hung to the neck of my husband and pleaded with him to try Root Juice. So much was being said about the remarkable cures the remedy has made that I felt it might do him some good. He had suffered for years with his stomach and kidneys and severe headaches. Every change of the weather his back pained him very much and of late years the lightest food would ferment in his stomach and bowels and the fermentation of gas would cause him to bloat so that he could not button his vest. He tried so many medicines that he lost heart, but I finally persuaded him to take Root Juice. He has used but a little over two bottles and I never saw such a change in a man in my life. He told me this morning that he would not take the best farm in the State for what the wonderful medicine has done for him." A number of local people have reported remarkable cures resulting from a short use of the great health-promoting discovery. It gives a good appetite, creates good digestion and seems to heal and tone every organ in the body. Root Juice is $1 a bottle, or three bottles for $2.50, at Wolcott's drug store.

The ultimate success of all that he had planned now seemed to the general manager certain. He gave himself up to the enjoyments of the cruise, dreaming now and then of the time to come when he and Frances as man and wife should go on long trips together.

The first sign of real interest the girl showed after starting was when the yacht cast anchor in the broad harbor of Ponce, Porto Rico, and she learned quite by accident that the cruiser Roanoke was expected there in a few days.

Then, to the intense astonishment of Mrs. Durant and Pinckney, Frances once more asserted herself. She declared that she loved the old Spanish town. Even the dirty plaza, two miles away from the main city, interested her. She insisted on staying over, because, she declared, she was determined to study the town and the people and even ride over the famous military road constructed by the Spaniards at a terrible cost of labor and life from Ponce through the mountains to San Juan.

Nothing that her mother or Pinckney could do would move her. She was interested, excited, eager all the time, and each day, without the knowledge of the others, she managed to slip over to the government house to find out when the cruiser Roanoke was expected.

It was a very pretty game of hide and go seek that the girl and Pinckney played without realizing it. Pinckney also every day had inquired about the coming of the Roanoke. He knew that Sommers was attached to the cruiser, and he was determined that the naval officer and Frances should not by any chance meet.

His orders were quietly given, and the captain of the Irvesa was ready the moment the Roanoke should appear in the harbor to get up steam preparatory to leaving.

Then, with these plans all laid, Pinckney began his own plans for departure. First he approached Mrs. Durant and found her only too glad to go. At his suggestion she spoke to Frances, only to meet a flat refusal.

"I don't want to go yet, mother," protested the girl. "I'm having a splendid time here in my own way, and I can't see any reason for leaving. I'd like to ride up to Coamo and try the Spanish baths and then go on through to San Juan. It's an easy ride, and I can meet the ship there."

"Suppose you and Edward go around by ship and let me come through the other way. I think that would be a splendid plan."

Mrs. Durant looked at her daughter, startled.

"Frances, I think you must be out of your head!" she exclaimed. "How could you come through alone? Probably you are planning to have Lieutenant Sommers take charge of you?"

Frances' expression showed only amazement, but her heart was beating hard.

"Lieutenant Sommers?" she asked, with well simulated surprise.

Mrs. Durant made an impatient gesture.

"Now, don't pretend, Frances, that you are ignorant of the fact that the Roanoke is expected here in the harbor, and he is on board."

"Is he?" said Frances, still seeming surprised. "Why, how nice that would be!"

"Nonsense!" snapped her mother.

"Frances, I don't care for that young naval officer, and I don't see why you can't get him out of your head."

The girl's face flushed hotly.

"He isn't in my head!" she exclaimed.

Her mother was not to be put off so easily.

"Humph! Maybe he isn't in your head, but sometimes I've feared he's in your heart, which is worse. Now, Frances, don't be foolish. You know Edward cares for you, and you know that your father and I would like to see you two married."

The girl shook her head decisively, and her tone was very firm when she answered.

"I'm very sorry, mother, to disappoint you and dad, but I must tell you once and for all I wouldn't marry Edward Pinckney if he were the only man on earth."

The mother looked at her daughter, amazed.

"Frances Durant, I'm ashamed of you!" she cried. "Here you've had me enduring that horrid yacht for a month past merely because I thought it would help to bring this match about, and now you tell me you'll never marry him! I've never been so treated in my life!"

Frances could not help laughing. She slipped her arm about her mother's neck affectionately.

"I'm awfully sorry, mother, dear, but I don't see how I can help you. You wouldn't have me marry a man I don't love, would you?"

"No," agreed her mother uncertainly; "I don't want to force you."

"Then I expect it's settled," decided the girl, with a long breath of satisfaction. "We won't say any more about it."

Mrs. Durant knew Frances well enough not to try to argue the matter. She still had some hope, for she had dwelt on the prospect so long that she could not at once give it up entirely. One change of scene had failed to work. She would try another.

"Well, then, for goodness' sake, Frances, let's go home," she said eagerly. "I want to get settled in my own room and feel the floor stay still."

The girl sighed.

"Very well, mother; we'll go home whenever you wish," she agreed.

Down in the courtyard of the old fashioned Spanish hotel Pinckney was talking to the captain of the Irvesa anxiously.

"You say the Roanoke is in?" he asked.

Sage For Darkening the Hair.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a soft "sage tea." When ever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all have to do is to call for the ready made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy. This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

For sale and recommended by Hargrove & Mullin.

The captain nodded.

"Yes, sir. She cast anchor in the harbor an hour ago," he declared.

"Then get up steam at once, captain," ordered Pinckney. "We will leave tonight."

The officer from the yacht hesitated. "Of course, if you say so, sir," he agreed, "but I would strongly suggest waiting over a bit. There is a bad storm brewing, and storms in this latitude are apt to be awkward. Don't you think you'd better lay over until the weather clears up?"

Pinckney whirled on him angrily. "I'm giving the orders," he snapped. "Still the seaman could not quite agree. He knew his business, and he felt a grave responsibility at the thought of taking the wife and daughter of the owner into danger."

"Certainly, sir, I'm under your orders," he said, "but we have the ladies on board, and they might not like a storm."

"Nonsense," snapped Pinckney. "You're too cautious. We leave tonight and dine on board. Get up steam at once."

The captain saluted.

"Certainly, sir," he said. "The responsibility is up to you."

Mrs. Durant and Frances came down into the courtyard a few minutes later, just as Pinckney was reading a cable that a messenger boy had handed to him.

"Bad news?" asked Mrs. Durant anxiously.

Pinckney looked up.

"Only that I must return at once," he said.

"What's wrong?" asked the other two together.

The man smiled at their alarm. "Nothing very wrong," he said. "In fact, this cable brings good news. The government has notified us to go ahead on the Rhinestrom gun order."

"Then the Sommers gun, of which you were afraid?" suggested Mrs. Durant.

Pinckney looked at her in his most superior manner.

"We were never afraid of the Sommers gun," he said. "It was only his influence in Washington."

It was Frances' turn to flush angrily.

"There was no reason to be afraid of that," she declared, as haughtily as though her own father's honor had been impugned. "Lieutenant Sommers would scarcely do anything dishonorable."

The man shrugged his shoulders. He could not, even though it were policy, suppress his hatred of Sommers.

"I'm glad you think so," he sneered. "I don't think; I know," retorted the girl haughtily.

Pinckney smiled with triumph. "Well, it makes no difference now, anyway," he said. "We get the order for the Rhinestrom gun because the Sommers gun has proved a failure."

Frances' face grew suddenly white as she turned away quickly. The Sommers gun a failure! What a blow it must be to him! Probably he didn't know it yet. How she would like to comfort him, and she could not! He would not listen to her. If she only could see him now! She was still so engrossed with her own thoughts that she scarcely heard Pinckney's question:

"Can you leave tonight?"

"I think so, easily," agreed Mrs. Durant. "What do you say, Frances?"

The girl turned wearily. After all, what difference did it make? She would not get a chance to see Sommers. His ship might not arrive for a week more. And, if she did see him, what could she say? It was all no use. She might as well agree to what they wanted. Why struggle longer? So she nodded indifferently.

"All right; I'll go whenever you wish."

Pinckney smiled his triumph, and Mrs. Durant beamed.

"I'll hurry right upstairs and pack," she said. "We can leave in an hour."

When Pinckney and her mother had gone Frances sat down at a table by herself to think. She was so lonely, and everything was so hopeless! There was no chance of seeing Sommers, no chance of their ever coming together again.

And she loved him. She knew that now. The clutch at her heart when she heard of his misfortune made it very clear to her. It was no use to try to deceive herself any longer. She loved him. She wanted him, for he was the one man in all the world who could make her happy. Now she was miserable, and he was a failure.

"Pardon me, Miss Durant."

At the cool, penetrating voice Frances looked up. A big man with a shrewd face and clear, cold gray eyes that had the particular faculty of compelling and riveting attention stood beside the table with his hat in his hand.

"Can you tell me where I can find Mr. Pinckney?" he asked.

The man was so obviously not merely seeking to scrape an acquaintance that the girl had no hesitancy in replying.

"In the hotel, I think," she said coolly.

"You intend sailing almost immediately, do you not?" persisted the man.

The girl was surprised, but the questioner's manner was thoroughly respectful and yet seemed to demand a reply.

"I believe so—yes," she said and half turned away.

The questioner bowed.

"Thank you." He half turned to go, then stopped and, turning back, said coolly:

"By the way, it may interest you, Miss Durant, to know that the Roanoke anchored in the harbor an hour ago and that Lieutenant Sommers is expected at this hotel any minute."

Then, bowing coolly, he turned and walked off, leaving Frances staring after him in astonishment.

A slight noise back of her brought the girl to her senses. She looked up curiously.

PRESIDENT DIAZ GRATIFIED

Mexico's Ruler Expects His Administration to Be Strengthened by Signal Evidence of His Powerful Neighbor's Friendly Interest, While Americans in Mexico Expect Their Billion Dollar Interests in That Country to Be Advanced by Reason of This Good Feeling—President Taft to Rest Four Days on His Brother's Ranch.

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 18.—Important results from the Taft-Diaz meeting at El Paso are expected by both the Mexican and United States governments. President Diaz eagerly accepted the opportunity as a means of strengthening his administration against possible revolutionary movements, and President Taft saw in the international program a means of further safeguarding the vast interests of the United States in Mexico. Aside from the personal element, these are the motives that prompted Saturday's exchange of courtesies on the border.

President Diaz has a national election coming on. He will attempt to re-elect Corral as vice president. Diaz is seventy-nine years old and is anxious to have a man of his own choice to take up the reins of government when he is obliged to lay them down. General Reyes will contest Corral's election. Reyes has been stirring up an anti-American sentiment in the country and has been and apparently hopes to ride to victory on it. "Mexico for the Mexicans," has been his cry when opposing the further investment of American capital in the country. The Reyes movement has been gathering force recently.

Through Saturday's meeting and the frank exchange of compliments, the fact is borne upon every Mexican that Mexico's powerful neighbor is pleased with the Diaz administration and stands ready to support him in any action that may be deemed necessary for the American interests. This will go a long way in crushing any revolutionary sentiment that may arise in Mexico, and in so doing will add to the security of the one billion or more dollars of American capital invested in Mexico.

It has been reported that Mexico took the initiative in regard to the meeting, but that is not so. The first suggestion of the meeting was made informally in a southern newspaper, and each president quickly took steps to assure the other that such a meeting would be agreeable.

The ringing of a dozen church bells was the welcome that San Antonio gave to President Taft on his arrival at 7:30 o'clock last night. The president had spent practically the entire day Sunday traversing the barren sand hills of southern Texas. He was on his train continuously from 9 o'clock Saturday night, when he left El Paso. It was a 650-mile trip, one of the longest he has taken on the trip.

No regular stops were scheduled for the run, but at every station a crowd was waiting, and the Texans, when they had an opportunity, shouted until Mr. Taft showed himself. At two or three of the stops the president made brief tail-end speeches, but in most cases he let the crowd do a part of the talking, carrying on an informal conversation with them over the platform railing. Following the reception here today, the president left at 2 o'clock this afternoon for Corpus Christi, which he will reach at 9 o'clock tonight, and where he will spend four days on the ranch of his brother.

Woman Dies in Church.

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 18.—As services were about to begin at St. Paul's Methodist church Sunday morning, Mrs. George W. Williams, sixty years old, wife of a prominent carriage manufacturer, was attacked by paralysis, dying in her pew a few minutes later. On account of the excitement the congregation had to be dismissed.

THE FIGHT GAME IS TO BE PUSHED

Negro Champion Awaits the Coming of Jeffries.

IT IS NOW UP TO THE LATTER

With Johnson's Decisive Victory Over Ketchel, the Task of Restoring the Belt to the White Race Lies in the Hands of the Los Angeles Boilermaker, Who Is Expected Home from Europe This Week—Devotees of the Game of the Squared Circle Expect Early Developments.

New York, Oct. 18.—For the heavyweight championship of the world Jim Jeffries will be compelled to make a match with Jack Johnson, or admit that he does not intend to re-enter the prize ring. Jeffries is on the Lusitania, which will reach here early Thursday morning, and has promised to make arrangements for the big fight without further delay. Johnson will be in Chicago probably by the end of the week, and says he will be ready to sign articles and post a forfeit to go as a side bet.

Johnson's victory over Ketchel has put the pugilistic situation squarely up to Jeffries. The sporting public is ready to admit that Jeff is the only white man in the world who has the physical strength and science necessary to bring about the defeat of Johnson, and at that there are many followers of pugilism who doubt Jeff's ability to whip the giant negro. Jeffries has $5,000 posted in this city and probably will call Johnson's attention to it as soon as he steps off the ship. If Johnson objects to this particular stakeholder, Jeff can easily turn the money over to somebody else with the provision that it will go as an appearance forfeit and also as part of a side bet on the result of the mill. If Johnson wants to clinch the fight he will cover Jeff's forfeit and then sign articles.

Ketchel did his best under overwhelming odds, but that was about all. The fact that he knocked Johnson down in the twelfth round showed that he had his punch with him, but that he could not land it on the right spot because of the negro's clever defensive tactics. The way Johnson cut loose his attack after being floored, however, showed that he did not have the much-discussed yellow streak, and was a slugger as well as a boxer.

There need be no wrangle over the purse or battleground, for the Jeffries-Johnson fight, for Promoter Coffroth, who will be here on Saturday, has and will make an offer which will secure the fight for Colma. If Johnson and Ketchel drew a $36,000 gate at popular prices, it is thought that the Jeffries-Johnson mill in the same arena would attract at least twice that amount.

Johnson is ready to fight Jeffries right off the reel, he says, but he probably knows that Jeffries will not be in his best condition before March or April. Besides, Johnson is believed to be anxious to tour the big cities for a while in search of more easy money as a result of his triumph.

Johnson Retained Supremacy.

San Francisco, Oct. 18.—Stanley Ketchel, the Michigan cowboy, met defeat at the hands of Jack Johnson, the negro champion, Saturday afternoon in the twelfth round of their twenty-round fight, after having floored his husky opponent with a vicious blow earlier in the beginning of the round.

Indianapolis was held in the parlors of the Christian church Saturday afternoon.

The subjects to come under the notice of the class this year are varied in character and includes most all forms of literature. Saturday afternoon was given to a consideration of lyrical poetry. Mrs. Donnan discussed Mr. Woodberry's chapter in his "Appreciation of Literature," and then in a most explanatory manner applied the principles through reading of certain poems. Mrs. Donnan's exceedingly pleasant voice, her sympathetic understanding, and the power of bringing out the spirit of what she reads makes her readings of this form of poetry a delight to her hearers.

The reading of Robert Burns' poems in the true Scotch dialect and the interpretation of them was a revelation to many who neglect this splendid poet because of the dialect. Tennyson's "Maud" was read and analyzed. As a poem which portrays every emotion this one stands as an example in all literature.

The next meeting, October 30, will be held in the Christian church parlors. The lesson begins promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

RECORD TEAM AT BIG HORSE SHOW

Lady Maud C. and Hedgewood Boy Will be in the Parade on Both Days.

PROSPECTS GROW BRIGHTER

Large Crowd Expected From Sister Cities—Decorations This Year to be Elaborate.

Prospects for the second annual horse show here Wednesday and Thursday are brighter every day. Everybody is pulling for it and the committee believes that the show will far surpass the one held last year. The managers made an announcement today which sounds good. Hedgewood Boy, 2:02¼ and his full sister, Lady Maud C., 2:03¼, the team which now holds the world's record of 2:02¼ to the pole, will be exhibited and will be in the parade on both days of the show.

The decorators are going ahead with their work and the lights will soon be in position. The decorations this year will be more elaborate than last year, and the merchants are asked to decorate their business houses for both days. It's a great chance to make an impression on visitors for there will be strangers here from Connorsville, Greensburg, Shelbyville, Indianapolis, New Castle, Cambridge City and Richmond, and it is up to Rushville to show them that the city knows a thing or two about planning events like the horse show. The fact that the world record team is to be here will be a big
